1. Claims 13 and 23 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

Claim 13 lacks antecedent basis for plural modules. It appears that the claim should depend from claim 11. Claim 23 lacks antecedent basis for the hydraulic diameter. It appears that the claim should depend from claim 22.

2. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

3. Claims 1-16 and 19-23 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by European Patent 423,964.

The European patent discloses a settler having a plurality of modules joined together to form hexagonal, angled tubes, as claimed.

4. Claims 1-16 and 19-21 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Biskner et al.

Biskner discloses a settler having a plurality of modules joined together to form hexagonal, angled tubes, as claimed.

5. Claims 22 and 23 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Biskner.

Claims 22 and 23 differ from Biskner in recitation of the ranges of the tube hydraulic diameter and length. It is submitted that the tube and module sizing would have been an obvious matter of optimization for one skilled in the art, depending on the characteristics of the media, and therefore fails to patentably distinguish over Biskner.

6. Claims 17 and 18 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over European Patent 423,964 or Biskner, each in view of Zimmerman.

Claims 17 and 18 differ from the European patent and Biskner in recitation of an attachment means and suspension of the modules. It is known to use such means to support similar tubes in a settler, as disclosed by Zimmerman. It would therefore have been obvious for one skilled in the art to use such means to mount the tube modules in the devices of Biskner or the European patent, as a known alternative to supporting them, and to make removal for maintenance simpler.

7. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. Other references disclosing modular tube settlers made by joining elements together include Tanabe, Wachsmuth, Aymong, Beckman, Meurer ('614), McCann, Kobozev and Durrieu.
